

Although the Robbins Lumber company has been notified that the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources will purchase the mill, the company would like to see the operation night and day for a year before they are going right ahead with the customary winter cut, which will be 18,000,000 feet. Three camps will be operated, two at Pine Lake, north west of the city, and one on the St. Louis river in Ashland county. The Pine Lake camps in charge of William Tomalty and R. D. Caldwell, while the three camps are under the supervision of J. H. Robbins.

President Roosevelt, though the youngest chief executive, is a year older than Emperor William of Germany, who is 42. The czar is but 31. Emanuel III, 23, Wilhelmina 21 and Alfonso XIII, 13.

Perhaps the most remarkable case of marital vicissitudes on record is that of a well-known society woman of Chicago who was recently divorced from a man in Wisconsin, and who remarried a Chicago man to whom she was married twice before and from whom she was twice divorced. Really, what are we coming to?

A dispatch from Christiania says that the belief is now general throughout Scandinavia that Capt. Stenstrup in the Fram, who has been in the Arctic for 40 months, has reached the north pole and is now on his way home, though absolutely no news has been received from him. This beats all wireless telegraph records.

The monument to John Ericsson—the inventor of the first armored warship, the Monitor, as well as the inventor of the screw propeller—unveiled in Stockholm, Sweden, the capital of his fatherland, a few weeks ago, consists of a bust of the great inventor mounted on top of a granite column into which a figure is chiseled, the same "John Ericsson." Every modern warship afloat is a monument to his memory.

The Brooklyn Eagle says that "if the church shall preach for the next three years the duty of common honesty in business and political life and shall hold up the high standard of life to which it is committed there ought to come a change over the spirit of the times. The curse of the present is the admiration for 'smartness.' We talk more about the cleverness of a scoundrel than about his crookedness, and young men are growing up who believe that success excuses everything."

If a government should ever become bankrupt and go out of business, its public property might be sold to pay its debts. But that can never come to pass. Should one form of government be overthrown another is set up in its place, and the new government takes possession of all the powers and property of the old. There will always be some sort of order and authority to control nations, and so the dream of the anarchists, a total abolition of all law and authority, will never be realized.

Over 8,000 women are employed in the different offices of the national government in Washington. Of the number 500 are paid salaries ranging from $1,000 to $1,500 a year; the other 7,500 draw from $600 to $900 a year, the compensation of ordinary clerks in the departments. These figures do not include the women employed in the bureau of engraving and printing and the census office. During the past 17 years 2,041 women have entered the government service by competitive examinations.

Genealogy presents some curious problems in the case of Mme. Patti. She was born in Madrid, her father was a native of Catania, in Sicily, and her mother a native of Rome. She was brought up by an American stepfather in the United States, married two French husbands before she settled down in Wales, and is now the wife of a Swedish nobleman. To prevent any difficulty in consequence of this complex state of affairs in connection with her property she has taken out letters of naturalization as a British subject.

When Arabi Pasha went from Egypt to Ceylon 19 years ago his deportation created a great stir. His return, however, has caused not the slightest excitement. He is now locked up in a cell at the Ceylon prison, and is as much a prisoner as the Arabi Pasha. The British have been harshly criticized for their treatment of Arabi, but such criticisms have come mainly from British enemies. The government was mild compared with what it would have been had Egyptian and Turkish authorities been allowed to have their way.

There has gone into effect in France one of the most pro-criminal laws of recent years. It is called "the law of associations," and provides that all religious societies, fraternities and orders which have not applied for and secured authorization papers shall at once become subject to government inspection. The result is that many orders with establishments aggregating thousands have either migrated from France to other countries or are preparing to do so. This includes the Jesuits, the Benedictines and others prominent in France for generations.

Another steamer in the Alaskan trade has come to grief, the Hating, bound from Skagway to Vancouver, being wrecked near Texada Island, British Columbia. It is answered to the charge that the steamer employed in this trade is unseaworthy, it has been declared that the ships are nearly all old but they are in fair condition, and that the real reason for the great number of disasters is that there are so many dangers to navigation in that part of the Pacific. That being the case, there is all the more reason why the ships should be stanch.

HIS FIRST MESSAGE.

President's Communication to Congress Nearly Finished.

The Document Will Be Short But to the Point—Some of the Topics to Be Discussed by the Chief Executive.

New York, Oct. 25.—The president's message is nearly finished and Mr. Roosevelt has informed the members of his cabinet that he will read it to them for criticism in the present week.

A Washington dispatch to the New York Herald, The document is one of the shortest prepared by a president and it probably will be compressed into a still smaller compass.

Mr. Roosevelt's opinion is that a message briefly but strongly discussing each of the important questions engendering the attention of the country will be what the nation wants.

These will be some of the important matters discussed by the president:

Reconstruction.

Mr. Roosevelt will make a general statement of the necessity for reconstruction, but it is understood that he will not make a specific recommendation of the measures to be adopted.

Treaties.

The president feels strongly on this subject, and it is his purpose to devote a considerable portion of his message to it. At the same time he will state, though he will urge legislation, present any plan for the determination of this important question. If he follows the view of the department of justice, he will urge the amendment of the Sherman law so as to provide machinery for the prosecution of trusts, making it compulsory for them to show the government officials on demand copies of their contracts and agreements, and authorize officers to make the examination. Mr. Roosevelt will not endorse this recommendation so far as it is now known, and may not even call attention to it.

Merchant Marine.

The need of augmentation of the merchant marine is well known to the country, and Mr. Roosevelt will dwell with emphasis upon it. He will not commit himself to the endorsement of any measure. In fact, speaking of this subject a few days ago, Mr. Roosevelt said to a member of congress that he did not believe it the duty of the president to recommend specific legislation. His duty was to point out the need, and leave congress to furnish the remedy.

Navy.

By reason of his service in the navy department, Mr. Roosevelt takes a deep interest in the navy. He has already dictated a very strong essay on the need of a strong navy. He will earnestly urge the adoption of a formidable shipbuilding programme, which shall include battleships, the outlying dependencies must be protected, and command of the sea is essential to their preservation to the United States. A large navy is also necessary for the defence of the Monroe doctrine. This will be an especially strong feature of the message.

Inter-Oceanic Canal.

Mr. Roosevelt will call attention to the report of the Isthmian canal commission, which will be submitted to him about the middle of November. He is an ardent advocate of a canal, and will earnestly urge action. He will also refer to the negotiation of a treaty with Great Britain, which removes all obstacles in the way of American construction of the canal, and will urge its ratification.

Miscellaneous.

In addition to these matters, Mr. Roosevelt is expected to urge the maintenance of the status quo in the Philippines and the enactment of more stringent immigration laws, which will enable the exclusion of undesirable aliens and the reenactment of the Chinese exclusion act.

Members of the ways and means committee who have talked with him do not expect him to recommend any reduction in the war revenue taxes. Nor will he, it is believed, include any financial recommendations in his message.

The negotiations with China will be described briefly and the Peking protocol and the correspondence leading to its signature will be laid before congress for its information. It has finally been determined that ratification of the protocol by the senate is unnecessary.

A statement of events in Cuba will be submitted, but as all the arrangements for the turning over of the government to the Cubans have been made public recommendations respecting the island are unnecessary.

Stocks Standard.

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 25.—A statehood convention was held here Saturday, every county, municipality and commercial organization in the territory sending delegates. Resolutions were adopted with great enthusiasm declaring that Arizona is justly entitled to statehood. A committee was chosen to go to Washington and lay the claim of the territory before congress.

Dead List Numbers 20.

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—Another body was recovered early Saturday from the ruins of Hunt, Wilkinson & Co.'s building, 1129-21 Market street, which was Friday destroyed by fire, making the number of known dead 20. There are still 11 missing and it is generally believed that the bodies of these are buried under the debris.

Escaped Convict Recaptured.

Tulsa, I. T., Oct. 25.—Jim Morgan, for whose apprehension there is a reward of $2,500 offered, was arrested here Friday. He is an escaped convict from the Texas penitentiary.

Tragedy in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Maddened by the report that his wife, from whom he had separated, was going to secure a divorce and marry again, James Kennedy killed her Sunday and then ended his life by sending a bullet into his left temple. The tragedy occurred at 6231 South Hermitage avenue, the residence of Mrs. Annie Barrett, mother of Mrs. Kennedy.

Court-Martialed and Shot.

London, Oct. 25.—The South African mail brings news that several Boers who were captured wearing khaki uniforms were court-martialed and shot.

FREEDOM IS NEAR.

Negotiations for Release of Miss Stone Progress—Abducted Missionary and Companion Alive.

Constantinople, Oct. 25.—Negotiations with the brigands from Melnik, in the province of Salonica, for the release of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary, and her companion, Mme. Tilkka, are progressing satisfactorily and the officials here hourly anticipate important developments.

Constantinople, Oct. 25.—Miss Stone and her companion were alive and well five days ago. Consequently the reported death of Mme. Tilkka is untrue. This news comes through a sure channel, which is kept secret because it is the one through which the negotiations with the brigands are conducted.

London, Oct. 25.—"A trustworthy report is in circulation here," says a dispatch from Sofia to the Daily Telegraph, "that Miss Stone is in the village of Belitza, close to the frontier."

Constantinople, Oct. 25.—During the last few days there has been a voluminous exchange of dispatches in cipher between Spencer Eddy, secretary of the United States legation, and Consul General Dickinson, who is now in Sofia, regarding the efforts to rescue Miss Stone, the abducted American missionary, from the brigands. The legation is reticent and nothing has been made public as to the progress of the negotiations.

Washington, Oct. 25.—The state department has not heard of the reported opening of communication between the missionary agents in Turkey and the brigands who kidnapped Miss Stone. In fact there has been no word from Mr. Eddy or Consul General Dickinson since Friday morning when their messages were of a negative character, so far as news is concerned. Nevertheless the department is satisfied from the reports that have reached it that its agents are acting with energy combined with prudence. Especially does it credit Mr. Eddy with a display of real in the effort to relieve the condition of the unfortunate captive.

STOLE VALUABLE PLUNDER.

Burglars Wreck Safe in Hardware Store and Escape with Cash and Securities Amounting to $100,000.

Berea, O., Oct. 25.—One of the boldest safe robberies ever perpetrated in this vicinity occurred early Saturday morning in almost the heart of the village. The hardware store of Lawrence & Brightman was entered, the large safe was wrecked and the robbers made good their escape, carrying with them booty aggregating in value more than $100,000. Baldwin university bears the heaviest loss. C. C. Brightman, junior member of the firm, is also the treasurer and a trustee of Baldwin university, and all of the valuable papers of the institution were kept in the safe. Bonds, deeds, notes and mortgages of the university, aggregating $100,000 in value, were secured by the robbers. Many of the notes held by Baldwin university were of long standing and bore numerous endorsements, making it impossible to produce them in duplicate. A diligent search for the thieves has been instituted, but as yet no clue as to their whereabouts or identity has been established. The force of the explosion was most terrific. The safe was constructed on fire and burglar-proof principles, yet the heavy doors were twisted from their hinges as if made of paper, and large pieces of the safe doors were firmly imbedded in the walls of the building. One section weighing 50 pounds being blown through a partition into an adjoining room. Six men are believed to have been engaged in the affair.

POWERS FOUND GUILTY.

Convicted Again of Complicity in Murder of Garret—Finally Fined at Life Imprisonment.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 25.—The second trial of Caleb Powers for the murder of Garret resulted in a verdict of guilty. The jury returned its verdict after a deliberation lasting less than an hour. The penalty was fixed at imprisonment for life. Powers was hopeful of acquittal, and said he could not be convicted on the evidence presented. He was greatly affected upon hearing the verdict.

(The shooting of William Goebel in January, 1898, was the culmination of one of the most mysterious plots in the history of Kentucky. At that time William S. Taylor, who had been the republican nominee at the previous election, held the governorship at Frankfort. Goebel, the democratic aspirant, asserted that Taylor had been voted by fraud. The state capital was thronged with partisans of both factions. It was in the air. Mrs. Taylor walked the streets with her hands at her pistol pockets. The contested election case was being heard by the legislature, and as Goebel was accompanied by Col. Jack O'Connell, on his way to the statehouse a rifle shot rang out. Goebel fell to the walk mortally wounded. It was proven that the assassin was a member of the legislature, a secretary of state. After lingering a few days Goebel died, but in the meantime he had been sworn in as Governor. Many arrests were made and a number of convictions followed. Taylor fled to Indiana and has not dared to return to Kentucky.)

Torpedo Boat Destroyer Launched. Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—The torpedo boat destroyer Chauncy was launched at noon Saturday at Nasse & Levy's ship yard. Mrs. Mae Chauncy Stevens-Todd christened the vessel. Distinguished officers of the army and navy and men prominent in civil life witnessed the ceremony. The Chauncy, which is a sister ship of the Bainbridge, launched some time ago, and the Barry, now being built, is 245 feet long and 23 feet beam, with four cylinder triple-expansion engines and Thornycroft boilers. Her speed will be about 29 knots.

Falling Off in Cologne.

Washington, Oct. 25.—A table prepared by the director of the mint shows that the coinage of gold throughout the world during the last calendar year was $35,925,497, a decrease from $46,110,614 for the preceding year. The coinage of silver was $17,611,902, an increase over the preceding year of $10,534,923.

Berlin, Oct. 25.—The British government is buying potatoes in Germany for South Africa, and 25,000 boxes have just been shipped to the Cape from Hamburg.

MCKINLEY MEMORIAL.

Association Having in Charge Erection of Arch at Washington Issues an Address.

Washington, Oct. 25.—The William McKinley National Memorial Arch association has issued this statement to the public:

"The McKinley memorial is cherished in the hearts of his countrymen. But their unexampled affection demands expression in a material memorial, a lasting monument to the memory of the nation's capital, the scene of his greatest labors and achievements. The William McKinley National Memorial Arch association has been incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia to meet this desire by the erection of a national memorial arch in honor of President McKinley in the city of Washington by raising a national subscription. President Roosevelt has accepted honorary membership in the association.

"It is proposed to place the memorial arch at the intersection of the Potomac connecting Washington with Arlington, which President McKinley earnestly desired and recommended to congress as a monument to American patriotism.

"Contributors to its fund will be made members of the William McKinley Arch association. The treasurer, Hon. Lyman J. Gage, secretary of the treasury of the United States, Washington, D. C., will receive all contributions and will forward certificates of membership to all contributors. Contributors of money may be honored as postmasters, managers of telegraph, telephone and electric companies, or as members of banks or other financial institutions and newspapers. They are hereby authorized and requested to receive and transmit contributions to the association, and to encourage the cooperation of governors of states and territories, the mayors of cities and all other public officials, of the press of the country, of the churches, colleges and schools, and of all organized clubs, and request that they will take immediate action to promote its objects by making and securing subscriptions, and by addressing to Thomas F. Walsh, secretary, Washington, D. C.

"The association is in entire sympathy with the proposition to erect a suitable memorial to the late president at his grave in Canton, O."

MANIAC SLAYS THREE.

Andrew Israelson Kills His Wife and Sister-in-Law, Shoots His Father-in-Law and Attempts Suicide.

Iron River, Wis., Oct. 25.—Deerbrook, a small town 18 miles east of here, was the scene of the murder of three persons Saturday. A fourth victim of an insane man's onslaught is dying. Andrew Israelson, a home-steader, became insane, and, arming himself with a rifle, attacked his wife and shot her instantly. The father-in-law, who attempted to go to his daughter's rescue, was the next victim. He was shot through the body and is now lying at death's door. Israelson then turned upon his sister-in-law, putting a bullet through her heart, and then rushed to the barnyard, where he shot a cow. This done, the frenzied man went back to the house, in which his mother-in-law was all alone. He did not attempt to shoot her, but prepared to end her career in a more terrible manner. The house was set on fire by the lunatic, but by the time the flames started a party of men on the road saw the fire. As they approached the house they saw Israelson put the gun to his mouth and blow his head off. The house was entered and upon the floor were the victims of the maniac. The dead and wounded were quickly removed, as was also the sick woman. The house was destroyed.

New Gold Fields at Rat Portage

The Lake of the Woods District Is Figuring as a Producer of the Yellow Metal.

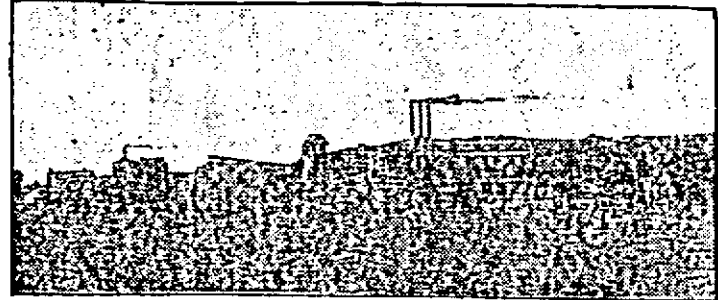

NOTHING will lift a country, a locality or a town out of the darkness of obscurity so quickly as the discovery of gold. The little South African republics were scarcely known outside of their own boundaries in almost the center of Africa until some one discovered the existence of gold in them. Alaska and the far northwest corner of Canada were considered uninhabitable until gold was found at Dawson. The discovery of the Australian gold fields was responsible for the changing of the future of that great English colony, and making of it a country of homes, of fertile fields, instead of a great prison, a place populated by English criminals.

Gold! What a wonderful infatuation there is in the word. To what ends have men not gone to acquire it; what dangers have they not faced to reach the almost inaccessible places of its deposit.

Placer mining is what brings the boom. Cities have been built at most within a day because of the finding of placer mines, where the individual unaided by an abundant capital, equipped with only the miner's pan and shovel, could wash out the precious metal. But the placer mine is not a sure foundation upon which to build cities. The man who washes his gold out of the sand by the aid of a pan and shovel is at best but a transient; the first cry of a new discovery may carry him onward to the newer, and probably more promising fields. It is the man who delves deep into the earth who finds his gold imbedded in solid rock, who to get at the mineral must invest his money in expensive tunnels and shafts, and who to work his mineral must invest more money in expensive machinery. It is this kind from which he hoped in time to take gold. A heavy mortgage was placed upon his business in Winnipeg, and the proceeds of this followed his savings. Around Rat Portage they tell you that not only did this man face financial ruin that he might develop what he considered a good property, but that he had carried local supply houses, who had faith in his prospects, to the verge of ruin with him. It was not a question of the existence of gold, but of gold in paying quantities. The gold bearing rock cropped out at the top of the ground right at the edge of the lake. As they followed it down it widened for awhile, and then would all but disappear again. But final success rewarded this one man's faith, and when it came it was not a hard matter to find the needed capital to work it. To save transporting the ore a 30-stamp mill was erected at the very mouth of the mine shaft, and this mill is to-day turning many thousands of dollars of gold into the money vaults of the world. The man who was laughed at for his persistence has lived to see the day when he was a much sought after individual, and to see those who laughed at him following his example, and putting their all into Lake of the Woods gold mines. How many of them will eventually reap the success that has been his is yet to be determined.

South African mining authorities, men from the gold fields of Johannesburg, have investigated the resources of the Lake of the Woods district and pronounce them superior in many ways to the Johannesburg mines. The president of one of the Johannesburg mining corporations said that while the South African mines were producing only about six dollars per ton of ore the Lake of of mines that are the foundation of lasting cities; it is this kind that bring with them not a floating but a permanent population.

Rat Portage. It is not a pretty name, but rather one to conjure up visions of the old days of the fur trader and the Indian. It savors in no way of gold, but rather of the skins sold in London by the Hudson Bay company twice each year. Until a year or two ago it was scarcely known except in the immediate vicinity of the Lake of the Woods and to transcontinental travelers through Canada. To these latter it was but one station in a thousand they passed on their journey. They probably marked it at the time of passing for its picturesque sitting of woods and water and rock, and then forgot it.

Today the name of Rat Portage is connected with the world's production of gold. As yet it does not figure heavily in the totals, but each year sees a larger production of the precious metal than the year previous. In fact, there is not a mine operated in the Lake of the Woods district, of which Rat Portage is the center, which can lay claim to more than three years of existence as a productive mine.

The traveler, who a few years ago would have passed through Rat Portage without giving the place more than a passing thought, to-day feels constrained to get off and investigate conditions of which the world at large is but beginning to hear.

At the depot, at the hotels, on the streets, everywhere he hears a tale of gold. Talk to what resident he may and the man will tell of wonderful prospects, and as a verification of his statements of future possibilities will point with pride to the production of such mines as the Sultana, with $200,000 worth of mineral to its credit; to the Mikado mine, with nearly as large a production; to the Olive and Regina mines, both smaller properties, but showing good results of operation. And when a sufficient number of convincing figures have been given him his informant will go down into his pockets and produce a bit of quartz that will cause his eyes to protrude and his breath to come in short gasps. To be sure, the bit of quartz is but a pet sample, picked out after months of search, and its duplicate is not found in every pound of rock taken out of the deep shafts that are being operated, for the Rat Portage people are like those of every other gold producing community—they put their best foot forward.

At the local mine exchange there is, in a small way, quite the same excitement that characterizes such institutions in larger mining centers. The larger mines, such as the Sultana, are not listed upon this local exchange. In fact, this particular mine, probably the best of the Lake of the Woods mines, is not listed at all, and its stock is not for sale either on this continent or in London, where it is owned principally.

the Woods mines now being operated were showing results of about $11 per ton. Canadian government statistics give the highest value at $11.70 and the lowest at nine dollars per ton of rock milled. This same Transvaal miner, Mr. F. H. Malcolm, says the average width of the Transvaal reef is ten feet, while the width of the Lake of the Woods reef is seldom above four feet on the average, though some of them run as high as 15 feet in width. But the greatest difference he notices is greatly in favor of the Ontario mine. That is the fact that the Johannesburg mine has to go to a depth of some 2,500 feet before the gold bearing quartz is found in paying quantities, while many of the Ontario mines are out-crop mines, and do not need the heavy capital to operate them. Then, too, the Johannesburg main reef is only some 20 miles long by about seven miles wide, while the Lake of the Woods gold district is about 250 miles long by 150 miles wide. Both territories are producing free milling ores.

It is such opinions by such men, men well versed in mining conditions, and the success already attained by mines now in operation, that have made the citizens of this district optimistic of its future as a gold producing territory of great value.

Capt. E. F. Kendall, of Rat Portage, with whom I talked, assured me that he had a number of prospects situated at various points in the lake, and that he was not at all pessimistic as to the outcome of his ventures. His sentiments are but the sentiments of practically everybody in Rat Portage and the smaller towns lying within this new gold field.

"You said," asserted the irate customer, "that this tonic would make hair grow."

"I did," admitted the clerk.

The customer removed his hat and showed a head as smooth as a billiard ball.

"I've been using that tonic for three months," he said.

"Oh, that's all right," answered the clerk, promptly. "You have no hair to grow. If you had the tonic would work all right. What more can you expect?"—Chicago Post.

An Interesting Family of Old Ladies

THOSE who imagine that there is no place in a modern, great, busy city for the old-fashioned quilting bees of our grandmothers' time would be very much surprised should they visit the home of a certain big happy family in Chicago. The members of this family are some 75 in number and probably more than a third of them are over 80 years of age. Their fingers are still supple enough so that the quilting bee is their main delight; and it is also a source of some profit, for the old ladies are often able to sell the quilts to visitors. On five days out of almost any week a quilting bee is in progress in one of the three parlors of this home.

Sometimes, when I am out for a walk, I drop in at the Old People's VISITORS ARE ALWAYS WELCOME.

Home, as it is called, and there I am always sure of a cordial welcome. So is everyone, no matter whether one's mission be that of helping to renew from one's own storehouse the old ladies' stock of silk patches, books, newspapers or magazines; of making purchases from among the array of crazy quilts, hand-knit mittens and other products of the never idle needles plied by trembling old hands; or one's purpose be simply that of brightening a lonely hour for the little old ladies and for one's self by reading, singing or engaging in light, rambling conversation.

Old ladies of almost every nationality are to be found in this home; but without regard to the fact that they are gathered together here from every quarter of the globe, they are bound together by a band of sisterly unity.

Of course "they're women," and sometimes a forgetful member will midway her combing many an speculation as to its whereabouts a search is made—under the bed, the dresser, through all the boxes—and finally the verdict: "I guess it's stole."

Age loves regularity and dinner is usually served on time; but it is recorded that once, in the absence of the cook (who had held her position there for 12 years), dinner was delayed some 20 or 30 minutes; speculations everywhere, hurried visits from one room to another, watches and clocks examined and compared with one another, consultations of grave importance; and serenely again established only after an exhaustive explanation on the part of those in charge!

The dear old ladies! Each of the three-score has a bright, cheerful room, furnished and cared for by herself and mutually expressing her individual taste and ideas of home. The rooms are uniform in size and on the door of each is its number and the name of its occupant. At the rap of gers that are sent by the kindness of the editors.)

Apologies of patchwork (which is incidentally mentioned), out from their hidden place under the bed come two long boxes which, when opened, disclose two many-hued, beautifully made crazy quilts. The one made in octagons is very superior in workmanship and design and might well be termed the "Prize Quilt." The other goes by the name of "Star Quilt." A century hence it will be quite impossible to duplicate them.

This little lady has a secret which is between ourselves and it is to be hoped, will not be divulged until the proper moment. However, one may hint, I suppose, that "something" is being made for "somebody" who is soon to leave the home never to return and go "way out to California."

Purchase, way up on the third floor, a round, beaming little body who coaxes to get about, with the aid of crutches, will meet you in the hall and invite you to her room, which is a frost corner one, with two large east windows in it. Here, instead of the regulation white iron bed and hair mattress, you find an old-fashioned, peaked, wooden bed with a mountain of feathers to lie on. As for the regulation bed, she couldn't be comfortable on "them hard things," and the mattress has humored her to the extent of securing for her a generously full feather tick. This old lady has a machine and has almost finished a neat black dress which she is making for herself.

But the great scandal of this home is not yet told. You will hardly believe, dear reader, that any of these old ladies would be "up to pranks," but I must confess that such is the case. We have young blood and freedom are fond of the illusion, are we not, that old people enjoy life better when they are held under strict surveillance? That notion could be further from the truth than this, the following incident will show.

I have noticed a regular look in the eyes of the heroine of this incident, although she will never again see three-score years. (I trust if this story should ever reach the eye of the matron of the old ladies' home, she will not think too much of it, for my old lady with the regular look told me the story herself and I should sorely regret to have her disciplined through any "tattling" of mine.)

It was at a time when Miss Van Winkle was one of the chief attractions on the boards. My regular old lady had not seen the play since the days when life for her was far more lively, I suspect, than at present.

The more she thought it over the more she wanted to go. She knew that it was against the rules to go out on an evening, and sinful even to think of such a thing as stealing away without leave. But the impulse grew upon her continually as she sat swaying back and forth in her chair by the window. More than once she counted the pieces of money that had come to her at odd times and which represented the labor of months with her needles. The amount was large enough to buy one of the cheaper seats. As she realized this she became more and more excited. She could think of no one whom she could take into her confidence, for fear that the chance might slip away from her forever—she did want to see Rip Van Winkle on more! Finally she concluded to confide in Martha, the girl in the kitchen, and Martha—Martha fell in with the project! From that time forth only scheming and plotting and whispered consultations and significant looks! My little old lady got into the habit of taking her knitting into the kitchen so that she could plan with Martha.

At last a night was agreed upon. At the appointed moment my conspirator crept softly down to the kitchen. True to her promise, there was Martha arrayed in all her "evening out" finery. The two slipped cautiously out the back door and no one was the wiser! My little lady sat entranced, watching Joe Jefferson in that role which no one can play as well as he, the veteran actor of it. Then, when the play was over, she allowed Martha to lead her silently back to her home. She felt gaily—but supremely satisfied. At the kitchen door she carefully took off her shoes and, with these in hand, stole softly away to bed, muttering to herself: "My, want it grand—but I hope the matron don't go an' find me out!"

Man Proposes.
Mr. Shortpursue—What are we paying that woman for washing?

Mrs. S.—A dollar a week.

"Hm! I can get a washing machine for ten dollars, and I'll do it."

Mr. Shortpursue (a month later)—How does that washing machine work?

Mrs. S.—Very nicely, but it's rather expensive.

"Expensive? How?"

"The woman makes me hire a boy to help run it."—N. Y. Weekly.

Feminine Tact.
"Why did you tell your husband you must have a $50 coat and a $15 hat?"

"So he wouldn't say anything when I actually bought a coat for ten dollars and a toque for $1.95."—Boston Home Journal.

Want Capable Assessor.

The state tax commission has issued a circular to the county boards of the various counties of the state calling attention to the law which makes it obligatory for the county board to elect a supervisor of assessment. The law requires that the county assessor be chosen by the superior in November and each officer holds office for three years. The state board urges that the highest rate per dollar allowed by law ($1.00 and expenses) be paid, so as to secure thoroughly capable and conscientious men.

Arm Torn Out.

Melvin Severson, aged 12, had his right arm torn from the shoulder socket while playing in a practice football game in La Crosse. During the mix-up young Severson's collar bone was also broken. The accident has aroused intense feeling among the parents of the city against the game. Petitions have already been started, which will be brought before the board of education, demanding that football be prohibited among all school children in La Crosse.

Gold Around Knapp.

The people living at Knapp have at different times found gold while excavating on their land. Recently Sam Tutts sent a parcel of dirt to Minneapolis which assayed three dollars, and also contained silver and copper. Mr. Tutts thinks there is gold in paying quantities around the village, and has purchased four 40-acre farms, for which he says he would not take a million dollars.

The Vene Condensed.

Rich deposits of copper have been discovered in Gilmore's Valley, near La Crosse.

Cory Millard, the son of a Milwaukee clergyman, was convicted of crime in Chicago for the tenth time, the charge being burglary.

The dead bodies of Mrs. Cepha Butters and her five-year-old son were found in the Milwaukee river, several miles north of Milwaukee. They had been missing several days.

It is announced that the smallpox conditions in the northern Indian camps are greatly improved and that the health authorities expect to have the disease thoroughly in hand before the winter sets in.

The indications are that the state will receive over $50,000 for resident hunting licenses this year, most of that sum being from the northern counties.

Benjamin M. Wiel died in Milwaukee. He was one of the best known real estate and insurance men in the northwest.

The Milwaukee health department has commenced an active fight against consumption. Killing by a consumptive is prohibited.

Dr. Henry Herzog, of Racine, died at Atlanta, Ga., of consumption, aged 56 years.

William Gross, of Clinton, fatally shot his brother while rabbit hunting. The shot tore the top of the boy's head off and he died instantly.

Mr. Emil Paul, while trying to sit down in a rocking chair in Marinette, fell over backward and injured her spine so that she cannot recover. She is a well-known resident.

Forest fires did great damage in Polk county, about 12 miles west of Cumberland.

Alexander McMillan, ex-mayor of La Crosse, and one of the oldest and best-known lumber men in the northwest, died in that city of paralysis, aged 76 years.

Fire started by a spark from a butter in the lumber yard of the Alexander & Edgar Lumber company in Iron River destroyed 12,000,000 feet of lumber. Loss, $160,000.

FUNNY FOLKS

Science and Religion.
Miss Lily, a young lady of 57, was recently visiting friends. Many of the rooms of the house were ornamented with embroidered mottoes framed and hung on the walls. She asked what one of them was.

"That," answered the hostess, "says 'God bless our home.'"

Miss Lily looked puzzled, so her entertainer inquired:

"Don't you have them at your home?"

"Oh, no," was the quick reply: "we have lightning rods."—Leslie's Weekly.

"Nobody can learn all there is worth knowing in a lifetime," said Mr. Myler, wisely. "And," he continued, "a man ought never to assume that his education is finished. I'm going to keep abreast with mine; I'm going to study astronomy."

His wife looked at him sharply, and then, in a cold, hard tone, exclaimed:

"John Henry, you'll have to think of some better excuse than that for staying out at night."—Tit-Bits.

Parental Consideration.
"Have you ever made any effort to improve your mind?" asked one of Farmer Corroscello's feminine relatives.

"Nope," was the answer. "We've improved our boy Josh's mind, an' we want him to get the full benefit. If some of us didn't eat with our knives an' say 'them there' we wouldn't realize how refined Josh is."—Washington Star.

EXCLUSION LAW.

The signs of the times are that at the coming session of Congress there will be lively doings when the re-enactment of the Geary Act, or any Chinese exclusion bill comes up. The friends and advocates of exclusion will require all the strength and ability at their command to succeed. The Chinese are being organized all over the country under the leadership of the late minister and Fourth of July orator, Sing Fong, Consul Ho Yow, and many others of marked ability, who know when and where to make their influence felt, and who are working with that steady, patient, unflinching industry characteristic of the race. A memorial to Congress asserting the inalienable right to travel in any land, and make their homes there, is being circulated and signed, and it is safe to say that they will bring every influence to bear that money or ability can command. Besides this they have sympathizers and will have aid from both East and South.

The Chicago Tribune says: "We are destined to return to the open door policy relative to Chinese immigration." An Alabama paper says: "What we need is a million active Chinese in the South to wake up the negro population into activity. We ought to have them, yet here is this un-American exclusion law in the way." The paper advises all Southern Congressmen to retard work against the exclusion law. Other Southern papers are in favor of un-restricted immigration of Chinese. In the Hawaiian Islands they want Asiatic laborers to develop the country and will make a strong effort to have a law passed to that effect.

The Philadelphia Press says: "The commercial situation is vastly different from what it was in 1892; the United States holds the Philippine Islands and is competing for the trade of China," and alludes to the "labor situation in this country." And in this "labor situation" is another stumbling block for Chinese exclusionists.

These strikes that have been so much in evidence of late, paralyzing business, damaging the many and permanently injuring others, composed, as their leaders and "representatives" boastfully admit, almost exclusively of foreign born persons, and largely of aliens, arrogating to themselves the right and power to say who may and who shall not toil, is an object lesson, and a potent argument against a discriminating exclusion law, and incidentally in favor of the moon-eyed Celestial. He never goes on strikes; is as a rule law abiding and orderly; has no murdering anarchists, less paupers and fewer criminals in his ranks than the thousands that are swarming to our shores from other countries. The admission of a few thousand of the "million" that Alabama asks for might have the effect of regulating these anarchist strikes and law defying outbreaks.

The fight for exclusion is evidently to be made by the Pacific Coast, and that simply means California and Oregon, as our neighbors of the North (bad neighbors at best) have the open door for all Asiatics, and profit by helping them into this country. Against the combined East and South, a discriminating exclusion law cannot be passed, is our opinion, but a law excluding all foreigners, Europeans, Asiatic and African, will meet the approbation of all native Americans. The time has long since passed when we had anything to gain by immigration. We are able to live, live well and prosper, without either Chinese or European assistance. What benefit do we derive from any or all of them? Give us an exclusion law that excludes all, and enforce it.

MISSIONARIES.

Our missionaries are forever involving the American nation in trouble. It was the middlemost foreign missionaries in China that led to so much bloodshed and to European intervention there. The latest American missionary to get into trouble is Miss Ellen Stone, who, at the instance, it is alleged, of the Sultan of Turkey, has been abducted by Bulgarian brigands. The report of the Sultan's complicity may be true, and then again it may be prejudice Christian people against the Turkish government and the Mohammedan religion.

At the time of the Turkish atrocities in Armenia a considerable portion of the people of this country were in a frame of mind bordering on hysteria. They wanted this government to interfere for restoration of peace in Armenia and for punishment of the unspeakable Turk, when, if America and Great Britain had kept their unworthy missionaries at home, the peace of Turkish Asia would have been in no wise disturbed. The true character of many American and European missionaries in the Orient was during the progress of the trouble in China only too startlingly revealed. Many of them stole and robbed with as little compunction as did the stolid and conscienceless soldiery of monarchical Europe, and yet the mission-of these priests there was to teach the pagans the golden rule.

Few if any of the Christian virtues did they seem to possess. If the American and European newspaper correspondents in Peking and elsewhere had done nothing else worthy of commendation they would still have merited canonization for their impartial exposure of the follies and frailties of the missionaries. They do no good there—they christianize nobody—they inspire no reverence and slight respect—they have little or no influence. But for the strong arms of the various foreign governments to which they are accredited they would scarcely be permitted to remain at all. One correspondent told of a priest of the Greek church who, after a residence of twenty or thirty years in the Orient, was sure of only one conversion to his faith.

After all, religion is a mere matter of belief, opinion. The Buddhist thinks himself right and us wrong, and we think ourselves right and him wrong, while the Mohammedan has not the slightest doubt that he alone is right and the Buddhist and the Christian are both wrong. One thing seems plain: the people of other faiths are as much entitled as we to religious freedom. How should we enjoy the presence in California of a multitude of Mohammedan and Buddhist priests intent on our conversion? Should we not feel annoyed, irritated, exasperated, at their audacity? But do we ever stop to think that the people of other religions may have much reason to complain of the audacity and impertinence of the Christian? We declare ours the true religion, but they declare theirs the true religion. Who shall decide when doctors disagree?

Two-day morning at 7 o'clock, Leon Golgoz, the self-confessed murderer, paid the death penalty by electrocution for the assassination of President McKinley. The execution was carefully planned and quietly carried out by Warden J. Warren Mead of the Auburn (N. Y.) prison. Mr. Mead is worthy of the highest praise of the American people for the simplicity of the trying ordeal and his positive refusal to permit of anything bordering on sensationalism. The natural impulse of a great many was that the death of the assassin was by far too easy for the nature of the crime. Torture of the murderer, however, would not bring back to life the martyred President. Now let Golgoz drop from our memory, and let us remember only the goodness of the victim of his deed.

Lorenzo Snow, (who has no doubt melted ere this) fifth president of the Mormon church, died at his home in Salt Lake City recently. During his lifetime President Snow had been the husband of nine wives and was the father of forty-three children. In the light of divorce court records and everyday experiences one might be pardoned for thinking that President Snow welcomed the change.

The latest report is that since the English have repeatedly failed to lift the America's cup, and since Sir Thomas Lipton has had no better luck when challenging in the name of an Irish yacht club, the Scotch have come to the conclusion that victory is reserved for them and a Scotch syndicate is about to issue a challenge.

Chippewa Falls is to have another daily paper. It will be published as a LaFollette paper by Romeo Hoyt, son of Judge William H. Hoyt. Romeo returned recently from the gold fields of Alaska and may have money to throw to the birds. He no doubt became so accustomed to the frigid zone that his publication will be in the nature of a frost.

Judge Barker of Ohio, has made something of a sensation in the east by declaring from the bench: "Man has a God-given right to work, but no court has a right to make him enjoy it if he doesn't wish to do so." On that platform the Judge ought to get the halo vote whenever he runs for office.

THE COUNTY'S FUTURE

Expressions of Our Own as Well as Business Men of the City Relative to Our Field of Investment.

Last week The New North published expressions of several of the leading business men of the city relative to the future of Rhinelander and the Ozaukee county. We have never seen this journal has been showing the progress of Ozaukee county as one of the coming agricultural sections of the state. In this work we have again this week enlisted the services of other of our leading business men.

Eventually the home-seekers will settle around us and we will share with the rest of the northern counties in this development. Ozaukee county will always be a good grazing section. The immense amount of water will always prevent us from having the extreme droughts experienced in the counties to the south of us. Many of the lakes and streams may dry up, but I hardly think so. The lakes all have an outlet and overflow. There is no reason why the country should not be a good manufacturing town, but what the future will be, no man can tell. We have the facilities at hand and they are only to be taken advantage of. The only discouraging thing is that nowadays the little concerns are crowded to the wall. I don't know of any better point in the country for the establishment of industries. We have the raw material, the power and the labor at hand. What industries that will take advantage of these resources is a matter for us to decide, and it should be decided as soon as possible.

F. T. Cook: "What do I think of the future of Ozaukee county? I have driven around the county more for the past few weeks than I have for years. I was never as much surprised as I was to see the vast number of farms that have been opened up. Tuesday I took a trip over the river road west of the city, out through the Ames district. I witnessed several farmers husking as corn as I have ever seen. The pastures along the road looked as good as they did at any time during the summer. I think for an agricultural county Ozaukee, in a few years, will be as good as any in the state. The outlook for Rhinelander is bright. When the lumbering plays out, the country will have developed so far in an agricultural way that the departure of the lumber industry will scarcely be noticed. In my opinion, though, lumbering will last for many years yet. The price of lands in two or three years will double, if not more. I mean by this that now is the time for active settlers to buy."

E. S. Shepard: "I have always been a great enthusiast. Ozaukee county is the best country in the north-west for stock raising. This is partly owing to the innumerable lakes. Hardly a forty is without a little lake. We have frequent rainfalls and the sandy soil makes it a quick soil and everything grows sweet and nice. Potatoes raised in this county bring better prices than those raised in any day country. The only drawback now is that we have not the farmers to demonstrate more fully what can be done, but they will come. The price of lands now range from $1.50 to $3.00 an acre. Lands can always be had on terms to suit the purchasers. The roads through the county are good, and all the lands can be reached, the roads being from good to passable. There is more timber in Ozaukee county to be cut than has ever been cut before, but of different kind, being hard wood, hemlock, elm, basswood and ash, and the second growth of pine. The future of the city looks very bright. The city has always enjoyed a healthy growth and will continue to do so."

A tin shower was given for Miss May Preston Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Arthur Taylor, at the Taylor residence on Clark street. It was under the auspices of the ladies of the church in the near future in which the young lady in whose honor the shower was given will take a very prominent part.

D. Corbett, who has presided over the Buffet at the Hotel Alpine for the past two years, leaves today for Antigo, where he will cater to the wants of the railroad boys who are numerous there. Daniels is an old railroad hand, in fact is a graduate, having lost a leg years ago while working behind one of the iron horses in the west.

THE GREAT VALUES THAT PREVAIL AT THIS STORE

Easily take the lead in quality and attractive prices. The result is a greatly increasing business of which we are justly proud. The splendid bargains provided at this time for all who come to our October sale excel all other offerings that have been made for a long time and are in line with the many surprising values that have made this store the most attractive and the most talked about in this section of the country.

CRUSOE'S Dept. Store.

D. B. Stevens left this morning for the southern part of the state. He will visit at Casaville, also at Lancaster, his old home, where on the 6th of Nov. he will attend the wedding of his son, Chas.

A "coffee" will be given at the home of Mrs. Thos. Jones Saturday afternoon from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock. The proceeds to go to St. Augustine's Episcopal church. All are most cordially invited.

The ladies of St. Augustine's Guild gave a "coffee" at the home of Mrs. W. F. Ball last Saturday afternoon. In the entertainment of the guests Mrs. Ball was assisted by Mrs. F. T. Coon.

Miss Edith Kelley left for Milwaukee Wednesday where she will accept a position as saleslady in one of the stores there. Miss Kelley has had considerable experience in this line of work and will, without doubt, take well with the Milwaukee shoppers.

The Catholic ladies announce that the rummage sale which has been going on in the small building on Davenport street for several days, will be continued Saturday afternoon and evening. The ladies state that so far they have realized $170.00 from the sale.

The bowling alleys have been much improved by the application of a new liquid preparation recently received, which, together with the leveling and scraping process to which they were subjected, makes the exercise much more enjoyable. The alleys are now perfectly true. Chas. E. Crusoe rolled up a banner score the first of the week, 23 being made.

The Alexander Stewart Lumber Co., of Wausau, Wis., have a crew of drivers on the river between Merrill and Wausau, bringing down about 4,000,000 feet of logs. The present stage of the river is very favorable and the work is being pushed as fast as possible to take advantage of it before any shrinkage occurs.—Minneapolis Valley Lumberman.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Hart departed last Monday for LaPorte, Ind., where they will make their future home. Mr. and Mrs. Hart have been residents here for the past year or more and during that time have gained many friends who regret their departure and wish them well in their new home.

Following is the program of the services to be held at the First Baptist church next Sunday: 10:30 a. m., preaching service, "Written Upon the Dust"; 7:30 p. m., preaching service, "A Little Waste of Time"; 12 m., Sunday school, Tuesday evening, Covenant meeting. Communion at close of morning service. Rev. F. Arthur Hayward, pastor.

A large representation of the members of the Wisconsin Press association left Chicago last Monday evening to enjoy their annual outing. It will be an excursion through the south. The party will return about the 7th of next month. Memphis, Hot Springs, Vicksburg, New Orleans, Hammond and Jackson, will be among the cities visited. Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Shelton, of this city, are in attendance.

J. D. Harvey, state superintendent of schools, has lately asked what he thought of Larned's History for Ready Reference, and replied: "I have used it ever since it was first published and find it to be the greatest value in studying history of all nations in all ages—and I know of nothing which can be compared with it. I have purchased a set for my own library. It is indeed a most wonderful work." 21

The performance given by the Kinetoscope and Vanville Co., under the management of C. C. Rich, at the opera house Monday evening, was well attended. The entertainment consisted of moving pictures, illustrated songs, musical specialties and comedy turns by the Wagoner brothers. The company started out last week, giving their initial performance at Wausau. Barring Mr. Raver, the baritone singer, the people making up the company, were known here: the manager, Mr. Rich and his wife, Miss Mollie Adams, having spent about the time here early in the summer. The Wagoner Bros. were also here with a tent show this year.

President Charles K. Adams, of Madison University, says: "Since the appearance of Larned's History for Ready Reference, I have made constant use of it and found it invaluable. I know of no other work of the kind and I consider it the most important addition that has been made to the library of the historical student. It cannot be too highly commended to those who would know what has been said by the best writers of all ages concerning the great events in the development of the human race." 21

S. S. Miller has been in Chicago during the week.

A. W. Bryant spent Sunday at Grand Rapids.

A regular meeting of the common council will be held next Tuesday evening.

The interior of the Andrie & Hillman drug store is being improved this week. It is being repaired and painted.

The fire department was called to the north side last Tuesday morning, a little house having caught fire in some manner.

Howard Knapp, of Oconto, was in the city yesterday and today calling on the grocery trade. As usual he found time to call on friends.

The fire ladders were called to the residence of Arthur Taylor about 8 o'clock last Monday morning, occasioned by the burning of a chimney. The damage was very slight.

D. J. Cole left last Thursday for Grand Rapids, Wis., to enjoy a few days' visit. He was accompanied home Saturday by Mrs. Cole, who had been visiting at her old home for a week.

Last Sunday night, Night Officer Mohr discovered a fire in the rear of Spafford & Cole's warehouse. The flames, which are supposed to have started from a spark from an engine, were extinguished without much difficulty.

Thus far County Clerk Carr has issued five hunting licenses, four of which were to ladies of this city. The hunting season is now on in full blast and we are informed that a number of game wardens are holding forth in this section of country.

At the regular meeting of the council to be held next Tuesday evening, an ordinance will be presented, which, if adopted, will provide for and authorize the numbering lots of the city systematically. A gentleman has visited the city with this end in view, also to get out a city directory. If the members of the council are of the opinion that it should be, the ordinance should be adopted.

A runaway that was about "the worst that ever happened" occurred last Saturday morning. A large team owned by Wm. Fryer of the town of Woodboro, became frightened near Carlson & Anderson's store, where Mr. Fryer was engaged in unloading cabbage. Despite the fact that the owner of the team tried hard to stop them, they ran for two blocks at a lively clip. They came to a stop at Carlson's place, where they completely ruined one side of the same.

Mr. Fryer sustained a fracture of a bone in his left leg and will be laid up some time. The horses were cut loose by the falling glass.

If Silence Lasts Too Long

By WILLIAM McLEOD RAINE.

IT HAD been three years since Robert Brambleigh had done any from Vonda Reibhardt. It was a pet because she had danced a schottische with Harry Prior that he had thought belonged to him. They were both young and both proud, so that somehow the expected reconciliation had never taken place. The Spanish war had broken out and Brambleigh had enlisted at once. He had called on Vonda just before he had left for the Philippines, but his time of coming had been unfortunate in that he chanced upon a roomful of visitors and found himself unable to make his adieux in private.

THE GIRL MADE A CHARMING PICTURE.

For three years Vonda had waited to hear from him, but the expected letter had never come, and now she must make up her mind whether she would marry Harry Prior or not. She had never cared for him in the way she had cared for Robert Brambleigh, but then she liked and respected him thoroughly. He was a good fellow, well to do, and she knew her family were eager for the match. It was unlikely that she would ever find a man more worthy, and there were financial reasons why she ought not to burden her father any longer than she could help.

should come back after all to find her married? "I do not know, Harry," she told him. He smiled a little wistfully. "Who does know, Vonda? For two years you have not known. Not that I want to hurry you, dear, but some day there must be an end of uncertainty."

The girl rose to her feet with a little cry, went white against the green and purple background, and stood rigid with her hand pressed against the heart that pulsed so wildly and irregularly. He was a shadow of himself, emaciated and yellow and was a victim of the devastating malarial swamps of the Pacific, but unmistakably he was the Robert Brambleigh she had not seen for three years. A flicker of his old, audacious smile glimmered on his face.

"Well, here I am. What's left of me? Hope you're half as glad to see me back as I am to get here, Vonda." Prior caught a sight of her face as she went forward with both hands outstretched to greet him. It was radiant, luminous. He knew she would never look like that for him if he stayed away a thousand years. A woman wears a look like that for just one man in the world, and for Vonda Reibhardt Harry Prior was not the man. He had found his answer, and he picked up his hat and quietly slipped away.

"Oh, Rob! Why did you never write?" "I did write—twice; but you never answered." She laughed happily, the tears in her eyes. "They must have been lost in the mails. I did not get them. How ill you look, you poor boy!" "It's better a thousand times for seeing your sweet face," he laughed.

A surge of joy flamed through him. His blood ran quick. Already it seemed to him that the sap of life and youth had renewed itself in his wasted body. There were no hesitations, no questionings, no doubts. She had found her love and he his. What were verbal explanations but tardy formalities their eyes outstripped a hundred times? Why wait to falter out stammering the things their lips said eloquently without words? In their arms each held what they had longed for a thousand times. To her mind there flashed the last stanza of Collier's poem:

"Can never grow too old, But wins to richer heights of glory Each time that it is told. And lips are ready for replying, With words of tender cheer: Speak, love! For wait the years are flying, And lo! the time is near."

TEXAS' SANITARY METHODS.

Measles Offered Armed Resistance But the Rangers Helped Enforce Regulations. Last year, says the writer of an article on "The Texas Rangers," in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly, there was an outbreak of smallpox in the Mexican quarter of Laredo, and the inhabitants would neither be vaccinated nor would they permit the smallpox patients among them to be removed to the hospital. Capt. Rogers and seven rangers were ordered to the scene to enforce the sanitary regulations. The Mexicans organized and armed themselves to resist. As soon as the troops arrived in the town Capt. Rogers, with one man, went to the street in which a smallpox patient was located. As he was walking up the street he was shot from cover by a Mexican, who was promptly killed by the private who accompanied the captain. The sound of firing brought the remaining rangers to the scene, and they advanced up the street, firing

MOST WONDERFUL EXPLOSIVE.

Maximite, the inventor of "Maximite," which has recently been adopted by the United States government, gives a clear account of his remarkable invention in Leslie's Popular Monthly. "Maximite," he says, "which has recently been adopted by the government, has satisfactorily stood every test to which it has been subjected, and there is none of the foregoing requirements which it does not fulfill perfectly. It is very fusible of manufacture; has a very faint point below the temperature of boiling water; cannot be exploded from ignition, and, indeed, cannot be heated hot enough to explode, for it will boil away like water without exploding. It is, therefore, perfectly safe to melt over an open fire for filling projectiles in the same manner that asphalt is melted in a street car."

HIS FAVORITE FLOWER.

North Dakota Suggests the Carnation for National Emblem in McKinley's Honor. President McKinley's favorite flower, the carnation, has been entered by A. R. Taylor, of Fargo, N. D., as a candidate for the honor of being a national emblem. In a letter to the Chicago Record-Herald Mr. Taylor says: "It seems to me that this would keep his memory fragrant as long as the union lasts."

For years past the selection of a national flower has been much discussed. This is the first time an attempt has been made by a sort of plebiscite or general vote to choose such an emblem. In other countries the adoption of a national flower has been due to some actual occurrence or to some legendary story. That of France is perhaps the first and most famous. It was adopted by Louis VII, who reigned from 1137 to 1180. He had the fleur-de-lis represented in gold over the azure blue mantle worn by his son Philip when the latter was crowned a joint king. It is said the design was not taken from a real flower, but was brought down from Heaven by an angel. It is also probable that it was originally the "fleur-de-louis," which by a translation in meaning became "fleur-de-lys" or "lily" or "lure." At any rate the "lilies of France" have cut a famous figure in history.

The rose was borne as a cognizance by several English families before it became a national emblem. A white rose was a badge of the house of York and a red rose that of the house of Lancaster. Henry VII, united the two families and wore a rose as his badge. Legend has it that in a night attack on the Scottish army a Danish soldier stepped with his naked feet upon a thistle, whereupon he cried out with pain, which gave warning to the Scots and suggested their national flower. The Welsh are said to have worn the leek in their caps when the Cadwallo attacked and defeated the Saxons in 633, hence their floral emblem. The shamrock is supposed by some to have been selected by St. Patrick to illustrate the doctrine of the trinity, but there is no reliable record of how Ireland came by its romantic trefoil for a racial emblem. The national flowers of other countries are: Italy, lily; Germany, corn flower; Prussia, linden; Egypt, lotus; Spain, pomegranate; Saxony, magnolia; Canada, sugar maple.

In the discussion of an American national emblem the golden rod, sunflower, morning glory, honeysuckle or columbine, corn flower and others have been proposed. The golden rod apparently has been most in favor, but there is one objection to it. Its feathery form does not lend itself readily to the conventional drawing which seems to be regarded as necessary in heraldic ornamentation. The requirement is an important one in the choice of a suitable emblem. It would be represented on banners, in decorations, in jewelry and in a score of other ways, and it is not easy to so represent the golden-rod. These points are likely to receive grave consideration if congress should ever act on the suggestion to select a national flower, which does not now seem probable. If a floral emblem is accepted by the people it will probably be due to some great sentiment.

Some of the states already have floral emblems as follows: New York, rose; Delaware, peach blossom; Maine, pine cone and tassel; Vermont, red clover; Minnesota, corn flower; Iowa, rose; Idaho, syringa; Alabama, golden-rod; Colorado, columbine; Montana, bitter-root; Nebraska, golden-rod; North Dakota, wild rose; Oklahoma, mistletoe; Oregon, golden-rod; Utah, sage lily.

JOKE ON BULLFIGHTER.

A Frenchman is invited to New York to fight a Tammany Tiger. Not long ago a French bullfighter of Beaucaire named August Fabre, who was not particularly prosperous, thought he saw an opening for his talents in America and wrote to New York for an engagement, writes the Paris correspondent of the New York World. To his surprise he received this answer:

"It is not a slayer of bulls we want as they went. Hundreds of armed Mexicans had gathered in the street to kill the lot of Americans, but the lack-door exodus that accompanied the advance of the rangers would have been ludicrous, except for the accompanying spectacle of the wounded Mexicans, a half-dozen of whom were left in the street after the rangers had passed. The official report of the affair naively concluded: 'After this the removal of smallpox patients was an easy matter.'"

GRACE REFORMED CHAPEL, WASHINGTON.

The picture presents a fair view of the interior of the little church in the national capital in which President Roosevelt worships. The edifice is an unpretentious one, and does not accommodate more than 150 worshippers, but the pastor, Rev. Dr. Schinkel, hopes to be able to erect a new structure within a year. Grace church belongs to the German Reformed denomination, whose trusts do not materially differ from that of the Dutch Reformed church, to which the building has always given its allegiance. The chapel is located at Fifteenth and O streets, northwest, in a popular part of the city.

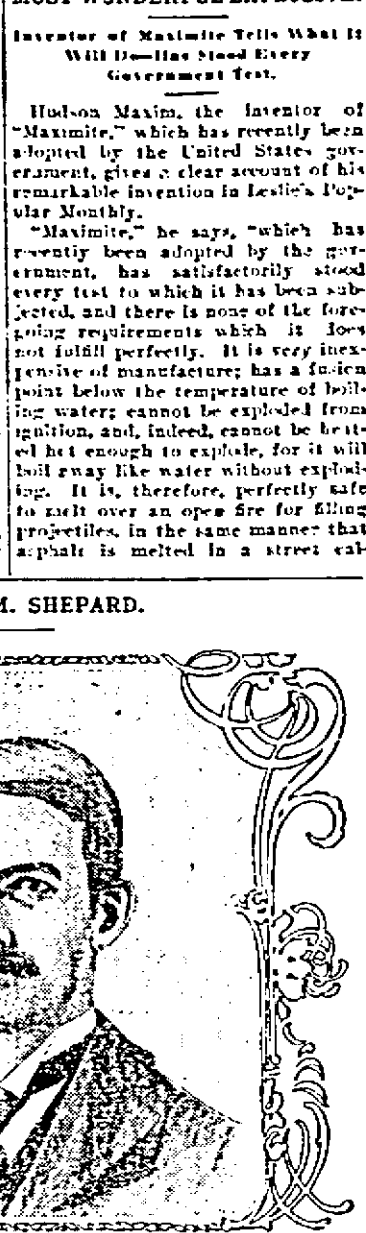

In New York this fall, but a slayer of tigers. The great Fabre had never heard of Tammany and he took the message literally. Screwing up his courage with a few drinks of absinthe, he called back: "Agreed for the tiger fight. Am going into training. Send date."

Then the ingenuous bullfighter told his comrades and was preparing to learn the way tigers should be attacked and conquered when he met a friend better posted than himself on American idiosyncrasies, and from him he learned the truth. But he cautioned his friend to silence and himself said nothing. So the inhabitants of Beaucaire remain convinced that in New York arenas are maintained for tiger fighting.

THE "HERO OF MEMPHIS."

Rev. Aloysius Weaver, a Franciscan priest, who died at the Santa Barbara mission in California the other day, was at one time well known as "the hero of Memphis," for his heroic work as a nurse during the yellow fever plague in that city.

EDWARD M. SHEPARD.

This well-known Brooklyn politician has been selected by the Tammany organization to be its candidate for mayor. He has for many years been a leader in New York politics, and has several times had the honor to act independently of the machine organization. In 1887 he supported Seth Low, his present opponent, for mayor of New York, but in 1890 he sided with the Bryan faction of the democratic party, and presided at the great Bryan mass meeting in Madison Square garden, in 1892. Mr. Shepard was reluctant to accept the nomination, but finally acceded to the urgent demand of his friends.

When a shell filled with it strikes armor plate, the Maximite does not shift a particle, and it is so insensitive that it not only stands the shock of penetration of the thickest armor plate which the shell itself can go through, but it will not explode even if the projectile breaks up on the plate."

Several efforts have been made in past years to discard the use of birds' breasts and wings, but they are sure to return after a time. ELECTRIC ENERGY FROM WIND.

Successful Experiments Recently Made by Herr Couz After Long and Careful Studies. From long and careful studies of the atmospheric conditions in northern Germany, Herr M. G. Couz, of Hamburg, has taken up the question of the industrial application of the winds which are always abundant in that region. He has discovered a system of electric regulators to obviate the inconvenience of the variation in the velocity of the wind. To put his ideas in practice Herr Couz appealed to F. Neyman, a manufacturer of windmills at Wittkiel, who put a large windmill at his disposal. The wheel had a regulator to keep its speed constant for a certain number of turns when the minimum velocity of the wind to keep it moving at that speed had been exceeded. This wheel, which in a tempest can furnish thirty horsepower, charges a large storage battery for electric lighting and power at Wittkiel. Some experiments were made and the results surpassed all expectation. These experiments, which were admirably conducted, make it possible to hope that small localities will be able to secure electric light and power from the wind at almost no cost. The expense of establishing such an installation is extremely small in comparison to the immense advantages which it secures.

DIPLOMATIC PEANUT DAYS.

Boys who sell peanuts in the grand stands at the baseball grounds are never discouraged if there is "nothing doing" in their line until after the fifth inning. Patrons of the game do not begin to feel "peckish" until after five o'clock, and then the peanut boy works diplomatically. If he sells one bag in a row of men he does not pass on to the next aisle, but waits in the back seats until his first customer begins to eat peanuts. In a minute or two men who are not used to him to come forward. Usually his basket is empty before he reaches the next aisle and he goes back for a fresh supply. One bag of freshly roasted peanuts in the hands of a boy who eats them as though he enjoys them is sure to create an appetite for a dozen more bags among his neighbors.—Philadelphia Times.

A Demand for Imported Hats.

To Meet This Some Beautiful Parisian Models Are Shown.

ALL that is the late fall and winter hats are just now the topic of conversation between women who pride themselves upon being well dressed. It is one of the whims of the fashionable that they wear Parisian models in hats. They are content to display their patriotism by wearing home-designed gowns, made oftentimes of home-manufactured materials when it is possible to secure the better qualities, and it is becoming easier to do this with each year, but in hats they cling to Paris with a fondness that is at times disgusting to our own milliners, who believe their taste to be equal to that of the designers of feminine headgear across the water.

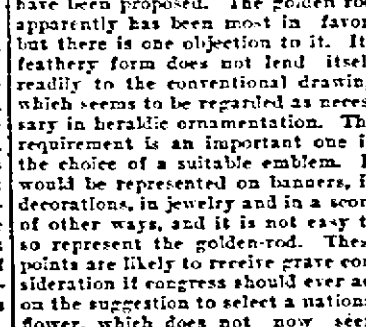

But the woman with the means to pay the price asked can get what she wants, whether it is of home production or not, and so it is that among the really fashionable hats displayed in the New York stores at the present time the majority are Parisian models from such famous designers as Suzanne Dunn, M. Paulyanne, M. Torre, Marchand, M. Heitz Boyer, popularity, is in dark green velvet. A long buckle effect of velvet edged with spangles extends across the top of the hat from side to side. The under brim is faced with chenille and spangles. The hat is set on a bandeau of crushed velvet in green. The brim is cut down on each side, and black and white wings completes the trimming.

Another of the large hats shows a flat affair in pale violet velvet gracefully draped over brim and crown, the folds held at the side of the crown by a long steel buckle. There is a side flare faced with changeable ribbon in violet and gold. There is a plume of a magpie's breast and owl feathers in shades of ecru.

Broad-brimmed hats will be worn to some extent. That is, they are deemed in good form by those who like them, and are especially suited to the needs of the athletic girl. One of these is of yellow felt. It has small rosettes of soft-wear ribbon in changeable colors—yellow, orange and red—set around the crown. The hat is set on a black velvet bandeau, with a twist of orange silk around the front and a curving plume in twisted palm effect to match the hat and ribbon.

One of the extreme novelties is a pale fawn-brown velvet, shirred on the crown and beneath the brim, the shirring forming a ruffle, which is the brim. Two guinea quills are set across the crown, held by a rhinestone ornament. The bandeau is of blue and tan ribbon crushed together, and clusters of blue, tan and

THREE OF THE Dainty MILLINERY CREATIONS IMPORTED FROM PARIS.

Lin Faulkner, M. Carlier, L. Colomb and many others. In fact, every prominent milliner of Paris is represented in the hat display now being made in New York, and the wholesalers assure me that this demand for Parisian models extends throughout the country.

A prominent Chicago house that is represented by buyers in New York has an elaborate display of beautiful models that are being sold in Chicago, and one needs to congratulate the women of that and surrounding cities upon the opportunity that is thus offered them to secure the latest and choicest designs.

A number of descriptions and some pictures will give a better idea of the variety of prevailing styles in hats than I can give in any other way, and I will offer some of those shown by the representatives of the Chicago house of which I spoke. There is one charming one in golden brown, of crinkled taffeta and panne velvet, in hands about two inches wide, braided together. It has a side hand of black velvet, and a fan-shaped drape of plush ribbon in brown and green also on the side. A round gold buckle holds the wing and pheasant tails that droop over the crown.

Another of these hats is in beige taffeta silk with narrow folds of velvet in the same shade, giving the curved effect of folds on the top. Green nicobar breasts form a band around the brim of the hat. Turquoise velvet is draped over the brim and forms a big bow under the side, held by a gold and steel buckle.

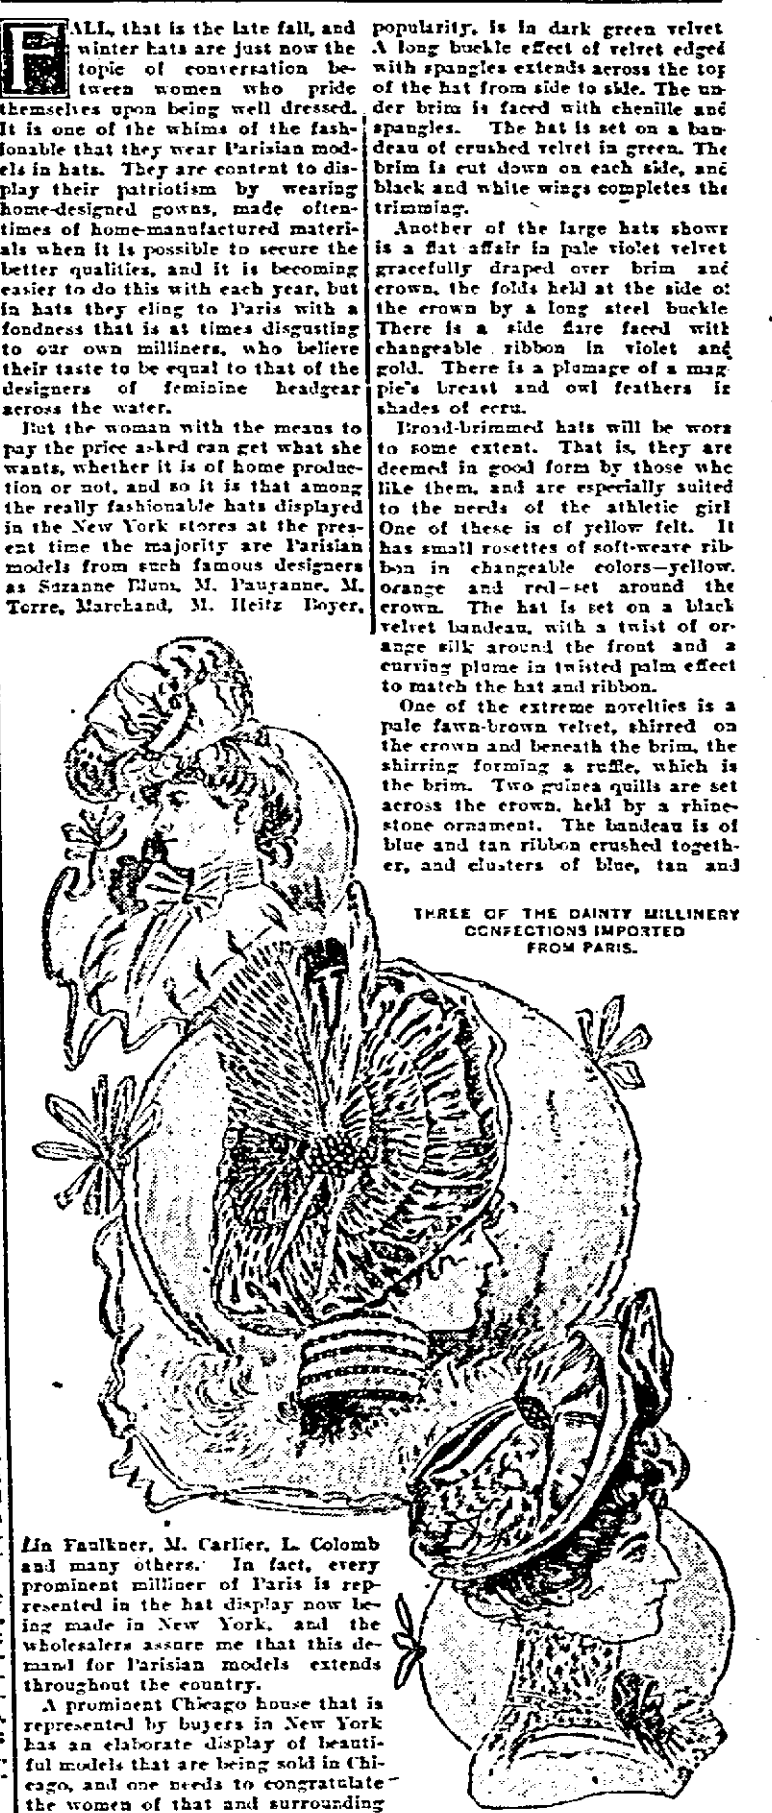

One that is particularly charming and suitable for many faces is a large hat in brown—a favored color. The high crown effect is of chiffon overlaid with chenille in brown and greenish shades. The brim is draped in brown velvet. Green and white velvet flowers droop under the brim in the back. A large green nicobar ornaments the top.

A dainty hat of an almost opposite type is of gray velvet and silk. In folds, the velvet forming the crown and the brim. The underbrim is draped in nickel velvet. A gray and white gull is a feature of the decorations.

A hat shown by this house, and designed by M. Paulyanne, of Paris, is sure to prove a favorite for those who like a large hat. It is designed in shades of brown. The top is formed of a draped plaque, the under part of deep brown velvet. It is trimmed with pheasants' breasts shading to green, and these are held in place near the front with round steel ornaments. Narrow brown velvet ribbon is on the crown in loops, and on the brim near the side.

Another sensible model has a top formed of a camel's hair plaque in gray, the under brim draped with very dark gray velvet. The draperies are held in place by a three-cornered buckle of gun metal. An ostrich plume in two-toned gray, held by the same style buckle, starting from the back, completes the trimming. One of the Amazon shapes, for which is promised a high degree of

FEMININE PERQUISITES.

Women Drummers Do Not Have to Drink or Smoke to Get a Treat on the Road.

In these days of feminine enterprise, when women are entering the fields hitherto occupied exclusively by men, it is natural that they should seek the employment of commercial travel. One of the most successful drummers in the west is a woman, who describes with keen interest her first experience in selling goods, says Youth's Companion.

It was the custom of a certain hotel, she says, to treat its traveling salesmen when they paid their bills. Accordingly, after I had settled my account, the proprietor looked at me in a puzzled sort of way and asked: "Will you have anything to drink?" I laughed and declined, and more embarrassed than ever, he returned to the charge: "I don't suppose you could use a cigar?"

Again I laughingly declined. He studied over the situation for a moment; then his face brightened. "I know you'll take some gum," he handed me a package. In point of fact, I have no taste for gum and never use it; but it would have been cruel to refuse, so I accepted it with as pleasant a smile as possible. Ever since that time I have been sure of a parting gift of gum from that hotel. So you see that the woman drummer is not without her perquisites.

Sixteen Years After

By EUGENE KATZ.

DARKNESS and the customary crowd of camp loafers greeted the stage coach on its arrival at Monarch.

The first passenger to descend was a woman of about 35 years or more. Though apparently about that age her face was light, her every movement graceful and easy, but vigorous. She was of medium stature, and was dressed for traveling even to a slouch of her movement to relieve her of her valises, and gave the stage driver a coin from her pocket, where it seemed to have reposed loosely. Upon the whole she bore herself manfully.

MISS DR. LEYOLA ADAMS.
Nurse and Physician.

The proverbial hospitality of a mining camp was not long in manifesting itself. Dr. Adams soon had a stream of social visitors. Everyone went to see her from the marshal to the saloon keeper. All the women and girls called, and much ado was made over her. The men assured her that they "would turn their trade her way," and the superintendents of several of the mines invited her to become the mines' physician, from motives of western gallantry.

From the interest she so quickly and spontaneously created it would not have taken much additional enthusiasm to have had it decreed that the men doctors should go. Some one did suggest this, upon the ground that one doctor and two undertakers were enough for Monarch, but another retorted that meant the "canning" of Dr. Adams' friend, "the poor man's friend." The recollection of his many acts of kindness settled that vagrant idea decisively. Furthermore, when the proposition came to Dr. Adams' ears she forcefully discouraged it. She also protested against the zeal of the populace in continuing the reception to her day after day, as if she were there merely as a tourist instead of as a business woman. Not only that, but some of those whose enthusiasm would not down went so far as to have themselves examined for some imagined ailments. They were willing to pay for their amusement, but she would not accept it and had to content herself with dismissing them with a good-natured scolding.

But all this was far from the purpose of her migration to Monarch. She had left the crowded east because her advancement and even the attaining of a foothold in her profession was too difficult and problematical. Here was a retiring nature. For the practicing of her profession she preferred a town to a city, and a camp to a town. The opportunities, socially and professionally, were better. For these reasons she had settled in Monarch.

It was a subject of common remark that Dr. Adams' only apparent enemy was Mrs. Gerson, who conducted a millinery store. Mrs. Gerson was the only woman who had not assisted in the reception to Dr. Adams. She had not even at any time called on her. She had started to do so once, going over with her young daughter, on a day when Dr. Adams' office was filled with callers, but it was noticed that she turned quickly away after appraising the room and its occupant. She excused herself to those who later questioned her that she was suddenly taken with a spell of dizziness.

But it was a known fact and much commented upon that this vertigo had not lasted all the time since then, and yet in the course of two years she had not even so much as passed the time of day with the doctor. She had, furthermore, declined to attend the New Year's ball at which all the camp turned out. It naturally occurred to Mrs. Gerson's friends that Dr. Adams' promised presence might have tended to keep her away, she had shown such a pronounced aversion for the doctor. They went so far as to question Dr. Adams whether she knew Mrs. Gerson. The doctor professed not to, though she said the face was familiar and all that. All Mrs. Gerson would permit herself to say was: "I don't believe in woman doctors now."

It was plainly apparent that this was not altogether the cause of her intense aversion for Dr. Adams. It was in the nature of things to theorize that another reason existed, of which Dr. Adams probably knew nothing.

The observing women of Monarch could not help noticing how rapidly Mrs. Gerson had aged in the past two or three years. While it was true that she suffered from a chronic ailment before the excitement of Dr. Adams' arrival, her general health heretofore had been good. In this intervening short time in appearance she had aged fully a dozen years, and now was growing sickly and emaciated. No one seemed able to account for it.

Nothing of her antecedents prior to her residence in Monarch was known. She had removed to Monarch from a camp near by. Her husband was a miner. He had met his death while blasting near Monarch. Some said her daughter was by a former marriage, but the statement was generally taken as mere conjecture.

It was singular that despite Mrs. Gerson's dislike for Dr. Adams her daughter should be practically fond of her. Miss Gerson spent much of her time in the doctor's office as she could spare from her mother's store. Dr. Adams reciprocated this affection. In her opinion she passed no hour better than when in the company of Miss Gerson, though she was secretly ill.

There was one who tied with Miss Gerson for Dr. Adams' companionship. This was Dr. Basil Cuthbert. Just as Dr. Adams had about concluded that the other physicians were going to show their displeasure at her arrival by ignoring her, Dr. Cuthbert called. He was the first of the doctors to do this. He had postponed his visit to give the mob's enthusiasm time to wane.

Dr. Cuthbert was a childless widower. Up to the time Dr. Adams entered the field he enjoyed the most lucrative practice in the camp. Now this honor lay between him and Dr. Adams.

From the time of that first visit a friendship, bordering on attachment, arose between them. They were frequently at one another's office. And after they met in professional consultation.

Time of friendship and the fact that neither was young in years emboldened Dr. Cuthbert one day to propose marriage to Dr. Adams.

She told him she would "see about it."

Dr. Adams was in her office at an unusually late hour looking over her books. Without knocking, wild-eyed and breathless, Miss Gerson rushed in.

"Mother's dying!"

Half the camp knew it before Dr. Adams, and she had to force her way through a dense crowd standing in front of Mrs. Gerson's store.

She found that Dr. Cuthbert, Mrs. Gerson's physician, had preceded her. He was already making out the certificate of death.

It required but a cursory examination of Mrs. Gerson, and Dr. Adams solemnly nodded her approval to Dr. Cuthbert.

The undertaker's boy brought a note with an inclosure to Dr. Adams the following day. The note had been found on Mrs. Gerson. It was worn and faded, and bore a date 16 years back. It read:

"Dear Adeline: If you prefer him to my friendship, and he prefers you to me, elope—unite. He devoted to him. He sacrifices his word of honor for you. But think of me neither in your success, for you may pity me, nor in your sorrow, for then you may pity me. Let me be to you as one you have never known. I forgive you both."

LEYOLA ADAMS.

It would be expected of a woman so generous and kind as Dr. Adams that she adopt Miss Gerson. Her love for the young girl went further. It prompted her to hasten her acceptance of Dr. Cuthbert's offer.

HER HOUR OF TRIUMPH.

The incident showed that Her Husband Was Also Able to Make Serious Mistakes.

Some neighbors and friends of ours had a horse called Alcide, says Horace Vachell in his interesting description of California life; and thereupon he goes on to relate an incident in which the horse played an important part.

Alcide was a most respectable horse, but like all of us he had his failing; he would flick his tail over the reins. So one day my friend, when about to take his wife out for a drive, tied down Alcide's tail so tightly and so securely that not a wiggle was left in it.

Now it happened that only that morning my friend's wife had turned on the water—water, you must understand, is a very precious article on a ranch in southern California—and, alas! she had neglected to turn it off; so the water had flowed away, leaving the family tank empty and cracking beneath the ardent rays of the sun.

Conceive, if you can, the wrath of a husband condemned by his wife's carelessness to pump many hundreds of gallons of water! You may be sure that he was an Englishman—told his unhappy wife that he had committed the unpardonable sin; and she, poor soul, appreciating the magnitude of her offense, held her peace—which is remarkable because she was a daughter of the west.

Perhaps the husband was sorry that he had spoken so harshly, and thought that a drive behind a fast trotter would establish happier relations between the two who should be one. Be that as it may, after the drive was over he began to unlash Alcide's wife, standing by and talking to him.

The traces were unhitched, the breeching straps unbuckled, and then Alcide was commanded to leave the shafts; but Alcide, wise as Balaram's steed, never stirred, for he knew that his tail was still fast to the buggy. Thereupon my friend took the whip and applied it smartly to Alcide's hind quarters.

Alcide, who had doubtless been nursing his wrongs all the afternoon, and who now saw his opportunity, as the lancers say, to show cause, retaliated by kicking the buggy into a heap of kindling-wood.

My friend's wife watched this performance with interest, and when it was over she turned to her husband and said:

"My dear, after this I shall turn on the water and let it run as often and as long as I please."

CAMP LIFE STORIES

A FORAGER'S LUCKY GUESS.

He Happened to Hit the Countersign and Passed His Chickens Thenceforward.

In the winter of 1862, after the battle of Fredericksburg, our division, the Pennsylvania reserves, were in camp between Falmouth and Belle Plain, down along the river below Fredericksburg, but on either side.

We did picket duty there all winter, each regiment going out on picket three days at a time, writes John A. Brooks in National Tribune.

A short time before Burnside made his mud march our regiment was sent out for three days in our turn, and while out two men of my company started off on a prowling expedition away in front of our line, and were gone all day. When they returned they said that they had seen a house about a mile in front of our line that they knew had some chickens about it, but they had not gone close enough to see. It was not very healthy just then to be found straggling very far in front of our line. The confederates had scouts over on our side of the river that were likely to pick us up at any time, and these men knew it.

"We were relieved next morning, and after getting back to camp and eating our dinner, I proposed that we go out after those chickens. We went about two miles to the picket line, which we sneaked through between two points, not being seen by anyone, else we would have been sent home again. After getting through we kept on, and finally got to the house; but it turned out to be nearer four miles from the line than a mile and a half. We found the chickens, after a time, and gathered in six, all there were. Chickens seemed to be scarce here this year, for some reason or other, but we had as many now as I had expected to get.

It was just dark when we got back to our line again, and now we were in a fix. It would not do for us to try to run that picket; the countersign would be out now, and we would get shot at surely.

We halted and held a council of war. The other man proposed that we walk up to the picket, let him halt us, then let the officer in charge pass us in. "Yes," I said, "and let him pass us to the guardhouse while he eats our chickens for supper. No, not to-day; we will not ask him to pass us in. Just let me pass us in; I think I can. If I fail, then we can try your plan next. Come on." We walked out in front of one of the posts and were halted. "Who comes there?" the sentry asks. "Friends with the countersign," I told him.

"Advance one, and give the countersign," he said.

"I walked up to where he stood with his gun at a charge bayonet, and leaning over the point of his bayonet, said: 'Crown Point.'"

"The countersign is correct," he said. "Pass, friends with the countersign, and we passed on, while the sentry stood looking at us curiously, wondering, I suppose, if we had been given that countersign to go out and steal chickens. After we had got clear of the picket the men with me wanted to know how I had got that countersign.

I guessed it, I told them. We knew the countersign last night was Crown Point, and we knew what it was the night before, and the night before that; and Crown Point comes close after Teodoro; so I guessed at it and hit it, that is all. That comes of being a lawyer, they said; now we might have guessed at that for a year and then not hit it.

Yes, I told them, a lawyer has to use his brains, if he has any, and often is not given much time to think either. He must use them in a hurry.

I was no lawyer, but passed for one in the company. What I did not know about law then and don't know now would fill a ponderous digest. I might have guessed at it for a year next time, and not hit it, either, but I did not tell them so.

Schwartz's Batter Was "Took."

During the battle of Shiloh an officer hurriedly rode up to an aid and inquired for Grant. "That's the man, with the field glass," said the aid.

Wheeling his horse about, the stranger rode furiously at the general, and, touching his cap, addressed him thus: "Sherman, I want to make one report; Schwartz's battery is 'took.'"

"Ah," said the general; "how was that?"

"Well, you see, general, der ibersessionists flanked us, and der ibersessionists came in der rear of us, und den Schwartz's battery was 'took.'"

"Well, sir, you of course spiked the guns?"

"Vot?" exclaimed the German, in astonishment. "Schpikie dem guns! Schpikie dem new guns? Vy, it would spoil dem!"

"Well," said the general, sharply, "what did you do?"

"Do? I'm tam, ve took dem back again!"—Cleveland Leader.

SOME TALL SOLDIERS.

Means That Stuck Up and Were Taken as Marks by the Confederates.

"Ignorance of the possibilities of war," said the judge, according to the Chicago Inter Ocean, "was the saving grace with the volunteers. The One Hundred and Fifth Ohio regiment was ordered to the front in Kentucky the very day it was mustered in, and only two weeks after the men had left their homes. They had been drilled only with pine sticks and started to the front without arms and without ammunition. I remember that when the regiment was formed for muster the regular army officer who was to swear us in looked along the line, and, discovering in company 11 a man who stood head and shoulders above every other, shouted: 'Get down, sir; you red-headed man there, get down off that stump!'"

"Now, as this man standing in the rear rank was Jerry Whitstone, six feet seven inches in height, and was not standing on any stump, there was a laugh in the ranks and explanations were made, but ever after that, in skirmish or in battle, or on the march, Jerry was greeted with the shout: 'Get down off that stump!'"

He went through the service and was in the grand review at Washington, but almost the last words he heard from his comrades of the One Hundred and Fifth were: "You red-headed man, there, get down off that stump!"

"That reminds me," said the sergeant, "of Isaac Macavoy, one of the very best soldiers in company C, of the First Kentucky. He was probably six feet four in his stockings, and on one occasion while the men were working on fortifications in front of Chattanooga became the subject of an exciting controversy. The men were sitting in the trench, with their backs to the earthwork they had thrown up, eating their noonday lunch. As they were not exposed, they could not understand why the southern sharpshooters kept peering away just at that part of the line.

"Finally, one of the boys proceeded to investigate. We heard him murmur 'fy gum!' and laugh. Just then came a sharp command from the officer in charge: 'You man in company C, there, take down your head.' We supposed that this was addressed to the man who had been prospecting, and paid no attention to it. It was repeated again in a sharper and more peremptory tone. Then the man who had been investigating slipped into the trench to say: 'The johnnies are shooting at Mac's topknot!'"

Macavoy was sitting on a level with the other men, but his head went above the earthwork a few inches, and the rebels were plunging away at it with enthusiasm. Requested again to take down his head, Mac took off his hat, leaving his head exposed, and quietly remarked that he thought he had heard a spent ball. There were three bullet holes in the hat.

EATING THEIR NOONDAY LUNCH.

On another occasion the men were ordered to kneel behind a low stone wall to receive cavalry that was expected to pass that way. The officer looking after the disposition of the regiment was about to pronounce everything all right, when he wheeled his horse and said: "You man in company C, there, kneel down!"

Macavoy was kneeling down like the other boys, but his head showed above the top of the wall. Unconscious of this, he was looking serenely at the late officer, and said, calmly: "I am kneeling down." The officer replied: "Then take your head down, blast you, or it will be shot off." And Macavoy suddenly crouched down so his head wouldn't show."

THE CAPTAIN WAS FOOLED.

Cannon Ball Tumbled Under Him and He Thought His Legs Were Gone.

While in conversation with a rather distinguished southerner who had been a colonel in the confederate army during the war with the south he told me a number of amusing incidents which he had noticed during those days of terror, says a writer in the Philadelphia Public Ledger. One of the best of these, which he touched for as true, and which he thought had never been in print, was that of a Capt. Smith, who, with his men, was among the confederate forces fighting the blue coats from the side of South Mountain. When there was a lull in the firing from both sides a detail, accompanied by physicians, went out to pick up the wounded. Capt. Smith was found lying on the broad of his back, and when asked what was the matter with him replied that they "must be fools not to see that both legs had been shot off." An examination revealed that the captain was intact from head to foot, and his only injury was a slight shock to his constitution. Then it was found that, while Smith was directing the firing of his men, a cannon ball struck the hill just below his feet, and, plowing through, left a hollow place just under where he was standing. The weight of the captain caused his feet and legs to fall into the hole, and the shock from the close proximity to the cannon ball had thrown him on his back. And there he lay, with his feet and the lower part of his legs partly buried, firmly convinced that he had been crippled for life.

During this attorney's rather loud address his German client bowed in rapid admiration, and he was heard to remark:

The Family Home Run.

The national game is frequently profane, and one of the most profane of "home runs," and one of the most profane of "home runs," was made by a Philadelphia batsman in Chicago. He hit the ball squarely, and it drove it over the right field fence. It entered the window of the second story of a house, rolled down the back stairs into the kitchen and landed in a pan of dough under the stove. The natural inference is that the family party at the next day of ball bearing bread.—Youth's Companion.

SYRUP OF FIGS

IS AN EXCELLENT FAMILY LAXATIVE—
IT IS REFRESHING TO THE TASTE AND ACTS PLEASANTLY AND GENTLY.
IT ASSISTS ONE TO OVERCOME HABITUAL CONSTIPATION PERMANENTLY

With many millions of families Syrup of Figs has become the ideal home laxative. The combination is a simple and wholesome one, and the method of manufacture by the California Fig Syrup Company ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product, which have commended it to the favorable consideration of the most eminent physicians and to the intelligent appreciation of all who are well informed in reference to medicinal agents.

Syrup of Figs has truly a laxative effect and acts gently without in any way disturbing the natural functions and with perfect freedom from any unpleasant after effects.

In the process of manufacturing, figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinally laxative principles of the combination are obtained from plants known to act most beneficially on the system.

His First Venture.
An American capitalist who has made a fortune in the rubber business, is telling a story of his first venture and how he succeeded in it. At this time he was frequenting a public saloon near his home where all sorts of lar-
One day I noticed several boxes of soap of a certain brand which I had often seen sent to buy at the corner grocery. I thought to myself, "That will go cheap," so I ran to the grocery and received a promise from the man in charge to buy as much of the soap at a certain figure as I could furnish. Of course he never suspected that I could furnish any of it.
I returned to the saloon and when the soap was put up I hid it in, and it was knocked down to me. My name was demanded, and when I gave it in a shrill voice everybody laughed, for I was then only eleven years of age.
Amused as they were at the sale, the bystanders were amazed when I hid in the whole lot of twenty-two boxes. I had them carried over to the grocery and received the price agreed upon. The grocer was a weary look when he heard how I had obtained the soap. He said:
"Well, I guess I could have done that myself."
I replied that I guessed he could, too, but he hadn't—YOUTH'S COMPANION.

Man Who Named America.
Few Americans are aware of the fact that the name of their continent is due to a German scholar. In 1497 Martin Waldseemüller, also known as Hyldseemüller, of St. Die, in the Vosges, edited a book called "Cosmographie Introdution," in which he gave a translation of Amerigo Vesputi's description of his voyages.
That was just the time when Amerigo's fame filled the world, while Columbus' disgrace overshadowed his merit, and evidently his name had never reached the quiet village in the Vosges where Amerigo trumpeted forth his own glory. So Hyldseemüller proposed that, since the new continent was, after all, not a part of the Indies, no name would suit it better than that of its famous explorer, Amerigo.
The book was read far and wide, and so quickly was the proposition accepted that, when later on the true discoverer was known, the name was already rooted too deeply in general use to be abolished, and was even extended to the north part of the continent, while Hyldseemüller had only meant it for the present South America.—National Geographic Magazine.

For Three Eyes.
Eyes will be greatly strengthened by putting the face down into a glass or eyecup of water the first thing in the morning and opening them under water. This is somewhat difficult to do at first, but if the water for two or three days be tepid and gradually made colder by imperceptible degrees until it is no shock to get the face into quite cold water it will soon become quite easy and is very invigorating and refreshing.
If done regularly every day, this treatment alone will preserve the sight into quite old age. There is a right and wrong way of wiping the eyes after this, too, and the right way is to pass the soft towel very gently from the outer angle inward toward the nose.

It Jarr'd Him.
"Pleasant of us you have here," said a policy holder who visited a life insurance office in the Postal Telegraph building in New York to pay his premium. The window overlooks the City Hall park and the Nathan Hale statue.
"Yes," replied the insurance man, "but the inscription on that statue is, 'strikes a discordant note in the soul of one who is underwriting risks on men's lives. Look at it—'My only regret is that I have but one life to give in defense of my country.'"—New York Times.

Mrs. Newed—Oh, it's a pretty place, but you know it is laid to be haunted. Mamma says she wouldn't set her foot inside the door for any amount of money.
Mr. Newed—That settles it. I'll close the deal for it the first thing in the morning.—Chicago News.

Arab Music.
Arab music has been described as the singing of a prince donna who has captured her voice in trying to slay a dastard with herself. Each note starts from somewhere between a yawn and a gasp, but does not stop even there and splits up into four or five portions, of which no person can be expected to catch more than one at a time.

Not Necessary.
"When you are at a loss for a suitable word, do you ever apply to your wife?"
"No," replied the writer; "I don't have to. Her entire vocabulary is coming my way most of the time."—Chicago Post.

Happy Thought of a Man in a Pin.
An operator for a western railroad who had served his company long and well was called into the office one day and asked if he thought he could hold down the job of night dispatcher. He promptly replied that he could and was told to report for duty that night, and his chief instructed him in what he was to do. Just after the chief left the office it began to blow and snow, and the trains commenced to run late. The new night dispatcher soon had developed a bad case of "rattles" and almost cried. He did not want an accident, and he could not handle the trains. So a happy thought struck him. As fast as a report came in he replied, directing the conductor to take a siding and wait for orders, and it was not a great while until he had every train on the division sidetracked. Then he took a look, lighted his pipe and sat down to wait for daylight. In the morning the chief appeared with anxiety written all over his face.
"Any accidents, Johnny?" asked the chief.
"Not an accident. I've got 'em all on the sidetrack, snowed in and waiting for orders, and you will have to get 'em out. I am going to blow this job." It took the chief and his force nearly all day to get the trains straightened out and traffic resumed on the road.—Indianapolis News.

False Tails For Horses.
False tails are extensively made for horses, old favorites especially, whose candid appendages present a worriment and much rather appearance, like Petrucci's "old mobby saddle," and his prodigiously mobby get up ("Taming of the Shrew," III, 2). They are also worn by funeral horses, and by other horses of exquisite outline selected for a particular kind of work, but which are somewhat spoiled in appearance by the possession of a rat tail (tail, like a rat). These useful appliances, however, are not constructed exclusively for harness horses. I have seen rows of bogus tails, artistically joined on to the crupper, hanging up in a cavalry barracks ready for instant service, laid slipped on just like a finger stall. The "fine ends" or false tails used by nobody but "horse cops" or low swindlers are most ingeniously fastened on the animal's bare back by invisible means. A dealer in horses never looks at a horse with a bad tail, and he always goes to the best market only.—Chambers Journal.

Robins Play at Head Dead.
One morning a well known naturalist was greatly surprised to see a robin lying on his back evidently dead, and rapidly pulled round and round by another bird of the same species. The naturalist at once came to the conclusion that he had come in time to witness the end of a deadly encounter, and that the live robin was indulging in the cruel triumph of dragging his victim's lifeless body over the stones.
But he was mistaken, for suddenly the live bird went down upon his back, his wings and legs were stiffened, and he gave every appearance of being dead, while the other robin who had been shamming death tapped on his leg and proceeded to serve his companion in the same way as he had done him. Finally the two birds flew away together to a neighboring tree.

How the People of Samarkand Keep Time.
The people of Samarkand, an island of the Malay Archipelago, keep time by the aid of an hourglass formed by arranging two bottles neck to neck. The sand runs out in half an hour, when the bottles are reversed. Close by them a line is stretched, on which hang twelve sticks marked with notches from one to twelve, with a looked stick, which is placed between the hour last struck and the next one. One of these glasses keeps the time for each village, for which purpose the hours are sounded on a gong by a keeper.

Four Kinds of Pupils.
The Talmud says there are four kinds of pupils—the sponge and the funnel, the strainer and the sieve. The sponge is he who taketh up everything, and the funnel is he who taketh in at this ear and letteth out at that; the strainer is he that letteth go the wine and retaineth the dross, and the sieve is he that letteth go the bran and retaineth the fine flour. The student who begins at least to wish to belong to the last named class will not have been sent to college in vain.

His Watch-dog.
Mrs. Suburb—Oh, my dear, that magnificent watchdog you brought home yesterday is gone.
Mr. Suburb—Eh! Did he break the chain?
"No; but an ugly looking tramp came around and acted so terribly that I let the dog loose. But instead of letting the tramp to pieces he went off with him."
"Great Scott! It must have been the same tramp I bought him off!"

A Little Sarcasm.
Maid (to lady at door)—Mrs. Spencer is not at home.
Caller (who knows differently)—Oh, I'm so sorry! But she comes in that I called to say that I'm awfully glad she goes out more than she did. I've always wondered why she kept herself cooped up in the house all the time.—Boston Transcript.

Careless About Their Hair.
Pamper women in Siberia wear shawls or kerchiefs on their heads, while the rich women wear no head covering whatever. A traveler recently returned from that part of the world says that a Russian woman who is otherwise trim and modern in dress will go about with her hair disheveled to the point of the ludicrous.

The Right of Defense.
In the course of a trial an English judge is reported to have said: "The laws of God and man both give the party an opportunity to make his defense, if he has any. I remember to have heard it observed by a very learned man upon such an occasion that even God himself did not pass sentence upon Adam before he was called upon to make his defense. 'Adam,' says God, 'where art thou?' Hast thou eaten of the tree whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldst not eat? And the same question was put to Eve also."

HEART FAILURE
has often been styled the cause of death in persons who have long lingered in disease. The amazing work which the heart regularly performs would certainly pre-suppose its breaking down. The most active climber can raise himself 1000 feet in an hour, the best locomotive 4000 feet and the heart 20,000 feet. To preserve its vigor in full glow and force, Pabst Malt Extract, The "Best" Tonic, will act as an effective and practical fuel. No steam without fuel. No energy without food. No staying power without rich supplies of blood. The heart is the great engine of the body. Keep it going, strong, easily, persistently, unto a ripe old age.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.
I have used your Malt Extract where a "Zest" tonic seemed to be indicated, and the results have proved quite satisfactory. Where a malt preparation is required, I shall not hesitate to suggest the use of your preparation.
